

Convention Is Dominated by Coolidge

By Stephen Bolles

Cleveland, Ohio, Sunday was a day of a stone quiet. Like a good many old American cities, it has given new patches on the old clothes, giving hope and promise some day that it will be worth looking at. But it has a magnificent auditorium of public hall. The seating arrangement is equal to, if not better than any in which conventions have been held in the past. The delegates are compactly arranged. Wisconsin's location is way over on the left of the chairman and in the middle of section 11. Pennsylvania and New York cut a tremendous hole in the seating space with the two heaviest delegations. The press seats on either side of the chairman's platform are also compact and the man with long patches on the old clothes advantage. Everything is ready for the opening of the convention Tuesday morning.

This is Mr. Coolidge's convention. Mr. Coolidge is not being told what to do; he is doing the telling. The national committee is going to be elected by the delegates. The executive committee to conduct the campaign, will be those who receive the magic touch of the president. Mr. Coolidge has been on the hustler, by busting more political branches in the past few days than Col. Roosevelt ever pulled leather on. There is a new deal all around. What is called the Old Guard is out of business. They take no front seats, have no place on committees of importance, and have no voice obeyed. Only Sen. McKinley of Illinois has been given committee recognition. It is quite likely Sen. Lodge will not be on the resolutions committee, where he has been for years.

There was never a convention just like this. With no serious fight, no heated arguments, no brass bands, no shouting, no cheering, no cheering, there are more people here, more delegates and visitors usually so early in the game, and never a more determined, calm, and collected election president than here.

Wisconsin is at the Hotel Winton. Atty. Gen. Ekern is the leader notwithstanding the governor's presence.

Wisconsin has not yet determined for whom it will vote for vice president. Somebody will not win, probably. And for that matter, one else knows. I am pretty sure in saying that this Sunday night Lowden is out of it. There is no fixed candidate, and the delegates will have no consultation of sentiment before Tuesday as the map now looks.

The Oracle from Washington, who has been at the convention since 1888, says he cannot get used to having so many women about. They are everywhere, in the lobbies, on the streets, waiting, talking, talking earnestly, some talking and lots of other things—but they are here and certainly add to the attractiveness of the convention crowd.

"Only wish," said Mrs. Harriet Upton Taylor, "there was something to have a fight over. I'd like to carry a banner, myself."

There are to be six seconding speeches to Mr. Coolidge's nomination. Dr. L. E. Marlon Butler will speak at some length—on a hour—then will come Marvin D. Madden of Illinois, with the next best and a string of lesser lights. There is a good place for Tom Scott of Kenosha to get up and talk for Coolidge. It would make a hit in the convention.

George H. Lockwood, secretary of the republican national committee up to a few days ago, says there will be two independent republican candidates—Coolidge and La Follette.

This is one question not dominated by C. S. senators.

You get a lot of this kind of talk in the smoker of the Pullman. Delegates were there from Kansas, Montana, Wyoming, South Dakota and Alaska. This last man was once a newspaper publisher in Pennsylvania and a Quaker supporter. He was for Coolidge.

Just when the matter concluded at one o'clock that it was time for quiet, it had been definitely settled that La Follette as an independent republican candidate, would carry Wisconsin, the two Dakotas, Nebraska and probably Minnesota. So there you are.

South Dakota will cast its 15 votes for Hiram Johnson. Everyone of the delegates, though released by Johnson, has the same answer, given by S. P. Wax, publisher of the Daily Public Spirit, of Waterson, S. D.: "We do not obey Mr. Johnson, we do what the people say and they sent us here to vote for Johnson."

What might carry the states—now, what will happen between now and election night, change the prospect?

They Gave Him the Air—And the Room—You Bet!

And he didn't mind it a bit.

In fact, from the minute he saw Mrs. Hickenbotham at the hotel, the Gazette, and the air, modern room at 424 S. Main street, he knew what he wanted.

"Rented the room and also got two boarders. We'll pleased with the results," said Mrs. Hickenbotham. "I always get good results when I advertise in The Gazette."

That's what thousands of people who have rented rooms through The Gazette know already—and what thousands more are rapidly learning.

PERSONALITY AND POLICIES MAKING OF CAL COOLIDGE

CAMPAIGN CHEAP IN MONEY BUT LONG IN WAY OF TACTICS.

UTILIZE STRATEGY Appointment of Stump Held Wise Move; Southern Knows Congress.

(This is the first of a series of two dispatches telling the inside story of how Calvin Coolidge was the nomination for the presidency in the last month.)

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1924, by the Janesville Gazette—Special Correspondence to the Janesville Gazette.

Cleveland—Almost unanimously, without contest of any importance, the nomination of Calvin Coolidge to the presidency by the republican party is being taken for granted so much that there has been little inclination to inquire into the methods by which the man from Massachusetts has been chosen.

On the surface it has seemed an easy campaign, but it has not been in any sense except financially for it is doubtful whether any campaign for the presidency in the present generation has cost as little.

There were occasions when a single leader might have cost Calvin Coolidge the nomination. After talking with some of the men who have been most instrumental in bringing about the triumph of Calvin Coolidge, the writer is convinced that almost the same kind of campaign with respect to fundamentals now will be waged for the election of the president.

Right Policies Imperative
The strategy of the Coolidge campaign has been a recognition of two things: first, that the personality of Coolidge was unknown to the mass of the people and even to the politicians; and second, that the politicians would fall in line if the right kind of policies were enunciated by the president.

The effort to nominate Mr. Coolidge began in the week that he succeeded the late Warren Harding to the presidency. This does not mean that he was conscious of it or that he gave it impulse or momentum. It does.

Two things that Mr. Coolidge did at the very beginning made him solid in the eyes of the people. He announced that the personal appointment of Mr. Harding would be retained, and that the policies of his (Continued on Page 2)

Francois-Marsal French Premier

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Paris—The ministry of a message is one of the names given to the cabinet formed by M. Francois-Marsal, in as much as it was constituted primarily to lay before parliament President Millerand's message explaining the political situation as he sees it and allowing the new majority of the left to go on record against him if it chooses, in which case he would resign.

Another application for the admittedly stop-gap administration is the ministry of a day, however if the anticipated program proves correct, the day will be considerably over 24 hours, for it and when M. Millerand resigns he will ask M. Francois-Marsal to carry on until a new premier is appointed by the new president and it is the present premier who will accompany the new chief executive from Versailles to Paris after the election, in accordance with tradition.

Francois-Marsal was high praise from the morning newspapers, which mostly opposed to the new majority in the chamber, for his courage in accepting office under the circumstances.

When interviewed by a couple of reporters Friday, Mrs. Red protested modestly, as most folks do, then chuckled at follows:

"What is so rare as a night in June this June? It takes more than ordinary cat fur to keep out the chill, so what could I do in all mercy but to take the mother cat in too? It was nothing but what anybody would have done. Besides, the kittens are getting fractious. Kicks in their heads just like all young folks nowadays. Look at that little mite now. Lying on his back and looking at my face with his paws. I'll need the mother cat to heat 'em up occasionally."

The story of the mixed family, published in the Gazette, has spread all over the country. Inquiries and clippings from various papers have been received at the Chicago home from Buckeye, Chicago, Kansas City and other places. One youngster in Kentucky wrote and asked for one of the kittens, and a number of visitors have called to see the unusual sight.

LEOPOLD AND LOEB WILL PLEAD NOT GUILTY TO CHARGE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Chicago—Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, the boys to millions, who have confessed the kidnapping for ransom and murder of Robert Frank, Jr., will plead not guilty to the charge of kidnapping.

This statement came today from Clarence Darrow, of counsel for defense, while State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe was sampling what his judges call the "perfect hanging case." The prisoners, whose confessions of the kidnapping and murder plot in detail have been published, with notes by each of the confessions, the other was read to him, will be arraigned Wednesday morning before Chief Justice Cawley of the criminal court, on indictments charging murder and kidnapping of children—both capital offenses in Illinois.

Aside from the decision on the defendant's plea, the case that has shocked the United States and even nations abroad today was marked chiefly by the state's attorney's efforts to combat an insanity defense.

A half hundred young men and women, including the Chicago and Leopold at the University of Chicago, were being rounded up and questioned. Through them Mr. Crowe expects to prove that Leopold and Loeb led normal lives as students.

4 ROBBERIES ARE CLEARED IN CONFESSION

Monroe—Four different robberies in Green county the last few weeks have been cleared up through the confession of Arthur A. Smith, in Green county jail, according to Sheriff Robert Blumer, Monroe. The property stolen totals about $10,000.

Smith is said to have confessed to robbing the Orah and Willie Kestner home near Elkhorn, when he secured $7,000 in cash, securities and jewelry all of which, with the exception of a small amount of money, has been recovered.

The others are the robbery of the Herget and Kaushy store of three; the Sanders school, where a traveling bag was taken, and the Trump cheese factory, where several hundred dollars worth of jewelry composed the loot.

Smith is said to have been seeking a "thrill" in robbing but being in need of funds.

VICE PRESIDENCY BIRTH IN MIXUP AS LEADERS BALK

LOWDEN DECLINES RUN; IOWANS SPURN KENYON.

PLATFORM, ISSUE Will Be No Wet Plank, Assertion, and No Anti-Klan Statement.

By STEPHEN BOLLES.
Convention Hall, Cleveland—This morning delegates are discussing four things: the platform, the possibilities for vice president, the effect of the La Follette candidacy and "when do we go from here?" Caught in the center of the storm which raged through Ohio, the delegates and visitors went about in overcoats and straw hats and enthusiasm gave way to efforts to find personal comfort.

With Lowden, Borah and Kenyon out of the race for vice president, the place is far from settled. Iowa would have none of Kenyon and offered a substitute in the person of Judge Dickinson. He, however, has not been taken seriously.

In the matter of the platform, it is perfectly certain there will be no anti-Klan plank and no wet plank. The effort of Ralph Beaver, Strasburg, of Pennsylvania, to stir up strife over a who and beer plank received no icy bath even from Nicholas Murray Butler.

The world court plan of the president Sunday evening was turned into a reception for the women delegates and visitors. The women are everywhere in force and will have to be reckoned with seriously before the convention is over.

Wisconsin remained out of sight during Sunday. Headquarters at the Hotel Winton were deserted most of the time and all the delegation will not be present until today.

Believed to be making a regular business of obtaining loans of $10 to $15 on "21-jewel" watches, selling for $3.75 apiece and then failing to reclaim the timepieces, two men were arrested by Chief Fred Gilman in Evanston on Sunday night after they had obtained $25 from two filling stations in Beloit and $12 from one in Janesville. The men were traveling in a 4-passenger Dodge coupe bearing an Ohio license and had about 200 of the watches with them, headed for St. Paul to join a criminal gang.

They gave their names as A. E. Decker, alias E. P. Lynn, 3514 Dorchester avenue, Chicago, and Charles J. Germaine, alias E. E. Short, 4205 Schott avenue, Cleveland. Decker is 28 years old, Germaine is 26, and both are clean-cut and well-dressed. Taken to Beloit.

Brought to Janesville in the police patrol by Patrolmen Porter, Ford and Dickinson. Sunday night the two spent the night in the local lock-up and were taken to Beloit by Chief L. J. Williams and Patrolman Herbert Schultz at noon Monday to face charges of operating a confidence game.

Darien Resident Ignites Clothes, Burns to Death

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Darien—Hugh McCarthy, 54, a member of the Darien town board and a lifelong resident of Darien township, died shortly after 10 a. m. Monday, two hours after his badly burned body had been found in a pasture by his brother, James, who lives across the road.

Mr. McCarthy had saturated his clothing with gasoline at his home and then had gone into the pasture where he ignited it. All his clothing was burned off.

Subtle was the verdict of the coroner's jury, sworn in here Monday morning.

Broadly over imaginary troubles was the reason for his suicide attributed by his brother James McCarthy. He had no financial trouble and, contrary to reports, his wife was not seriously ill.

Hugh McCarthy was born in the town of Darien March 21, 1868, and married Mollie Wilkins, Darien, Jan. 8, 1904. One son, Hubert, survives with the wife and two brothers, James, Darien, and C. E. McCarthy, Janesville, a sister Mrs. Clara Wilcox, Delavan.

Mr. McCarthy has been a member of the Darien town board for 12 or 14 years, was well liked and respected and his sudden death came as a shock to his many friends. He was a member of the Woodmen and Knights of Columbus lodge of Delavan.

Funeral services will be held at 9:30 a. m. Wednesday at St. Andrew's church, Delavan, with the Rev. Fr. J. J. Shanahan officiating. Burial will be in the St. Andrew cemetery.

DAUGHERTY-FALL CONDEMNATION IS ASKED OF PARTY

EXTRA SESSION Bloc Wants Congress Called to Settle Farm Relief and Other Issues.

By STEPHEN BOLLES
Convention Hall, Cleveland.—A change in the lineup was made this morning after a conference of La Follette delegates following the arrival of Congressman H. A. Cooper. The first district committee will meet at the La Follette platform as a publicity report. Attorney General Egan will be general of the reserves at tonight's session in the interest of harmony. Cooper will act as chairman and will continue as head of the Wisconsin delegation. It is enough to say that Thomas Scott, Coolidge delegate, is not invited to any conference.

Cleveland.—Republican insurgents acting through the Wisconsin delegation, will ask the republican national convention to formally condemn the official acts of Harry M. Daugherty, as attorney general, and Robert B. Fall as secretary of the interior.

This is disclosed in an official copy of the insurgent platform made public today by Robert M. La Follette, son of the Wisconsin senator, in the name of the Wisconsin delegation. The statement says further that Daugherty and Fall "be forever debarred from holding any position of honor or trust within the gift either of the republican party or of any future republican administration."

The insurgents also would have President Coolidge summon congress into extraordinary session Monday, July 7, 1924, for consideration of emergency legislation for relief of agriculture; to provide funds for payment of soldiers' bonus; for consideration of the Howell-Barkley bill.

WITH THE FARMERS

Farm Bureau Official Information

NUMBER OF FORMS

CO-OP MARKETING

Associations Formed for Improving Marketing Methods for Producers.

Co-operative organizations for the marketing of farm products are formed for the purpose, not of supplying private middlemen, but of making marketing more efficient for farmers. Even with farmers' co-operative companies in operation the usual wholesale and retail trade is relied upon to deliver farm products to the consumer. The great mass of middlemen is therefore not interfered with. The farmers' side of the problem is cured by supplying a few inefficient but more capable co-operative marketers.

Theodore Macklin of the Wisconsin college of agriculture thus answers one of the popular misconceptions about agricultural co-operation. There are, he admits, an increasing number of instances where the nature of the product and service make co-operative service more efficient than private marketing systems. But even here the system refers only to that infinitely small portion of all middlemen who serve as local country dealers buying from farmers and distributing the product to wholesalers and retailers.

In order to carry the product a greater or less distance along the road from producer to consumer and to meet other varying problems, Macklin has found that many forms of co-operative organization are used. Even the same problems are met in different ways, and frequently more than one form of organization is needed to satisfy different people. The result is plenty of variety in type of organization from which to choose.

Macklin divides all these forms of organization, roughly, into two divisions. In the first class are those which may be considered as "marketing co-operatives" in all its phases by rendering all the marketing services from producer to consumer. The other, rendering only a few services, is "service co-operation." In other words, co-operative effort is no more complete than the portion of the marketing system which it covers.

As an example of partial co-operation because of the very limited service rendered, Macklin suggests the group of farmers who desire to ship only livestock and thus render a single service through their co-operative livestock shipping association. "A co-operative like this is needed," he says, "to render one or a few services in a restricted area, but if there are a large number of these local associations and it is believed that other services should be rendered, this fact presents the need for further organization to provide additional services."

Local Units in Crops

This further organization can be carried out in two ways, according to Macklin. The local units may form a central federation of the type which is found in the dairy districts, which in turn combine to form the central organization. This form of union is known as the local unit federated type.

The California Fruit Growers' exchange, the Union of the Siberian Creamery associations, and the Dutch butter, bacon, and egg marketing federations are the highest developments of this type of organization. These co-operatives only take their product a part of the way to consumer, so as to have a device by which they may be marketed in a co-operative marketing. Macklin believes that while these groups could conceivably build complete co-operation, economic conditions make it very unlikely that they will do so at all soon, if ever.

Fit Some Needs Best

In addition to the federated-local co-operative form of organization, Macklin also emphasizes the highly centralized form. It is a single organization which the farmers join regardless of their location in the state or district. In forming these highly centralized farmers' membership co-operatives, producers do not first join a local, and rely on those locals to form a central, but the producers become direct personal members of the central selling organization itself.

This method has been given its loudest tryout by the experience of the Sun Maid Raisin company and its predecessor the California Associated Raisin company, the California Pomegranate and Apricot Growers' association, the United Producers of Central California, and others. These also are examples of co-operatives which cover but a part of the marketing field because it has been more beneficial to render a limited number of services.

The milk supply of the city of Vancouver, B. C., is an example of complete co-operation in marketing by a central organization. Macklin has found that most of the complete co-operative organizations are complete in marketing whole milk. The Vancouver district is especially adapted to it as the members are in a restricted area serving one market. The entire district and membership is not much larger than many of the so-called strictly local associations.

Complete Co-op. Marketing.

Two cases of complete co-operative marketing of the federal-local unit form of organization have been selected. Macklin believes this is because of the character of the products handled. They are better sold to consumers through the regular retail store than through the regular retail store.

All co-operative systems, whether of the federated-local association type or of the centralized membership type, must be based on the same general business or economic principles. Macklin emphasizes that to win the special characteristics advantages of each depends upon choosing the system which best fits the product, the market, the members, and the local conditions. The question of choice between them only arises where the two systems are equally adapted to the product, the market, the members, and the local conditions.

SOY BEANS BECOME A LEADING CROP

Many Farmers to Attend Station Day—Poultry Leaders Are Named.

Soybeans are getting to be an important crop in Rock County. Magnolia township claims to be the home of soybean township in the county.

Some of the farmers in this township are putting in a large acreage this year. Wayne Lewis has 25 acres of soybeans for hay and 36 acres in corn and soybeans. Roy Nelly has 25 acres of soybeans for seed, 10 acres for hay, 20 acres for silage and acres for hog pasture. He is using the 110. Sans and Manchus.

Rock County has shipped in several hundred bushels of soybeans for seed this year through the Farm Bureau. With the great increase in acreage, it is expected that we will have plenty of seed of our own for 1925.

Attend Station Day

June 28th is Station Day at the College of Agriculture. On this day the farmers, their wives, and children, gather for a day of pleasure and education. Every department of the college will exhibit some interesting feature of its work. There are 200 demonstration plots which will be shown to the men. The Horticultural Department will put on an orchard spraying demonstration. The livestock department will give valuable demonstrations in the care and feeding of livestock.

The women will enjoy the afternoon with the Home Economics workers. There will be sports and games for the boys and girls. Many of the farmers and their wives from Rock County are planning on driving to Madison on the 26. The Smithtown Community Club of Bradford is planning on going in a body to the Field Day. Other clubs and individuals will not doubt swell the crowd to 500 or 600 from Rock county.

Poultry Leaders

The following poultry men and women of Rock County have been elected to represent the Rock County Poultry association in their respective townships.

predecessor would be followed out so far as it was consistent with changing circumstances. But he did something else—he sent to the senate in December every one of the recess appointments made by Mr. Harding and even carried out some of the informal pledges made concerning appointments by the late president.

This was evidence that Coolidge was a faithful party man and would not upset the organization at least not before the organization had an opportunity to demonstrate its worth in every state and under its reward. Anyone who understands practical politics cannot underestimate the importance of the move.

Slump, Good Move

Then the appointment of private secretary of O. Rossom Slump, former representative from Virginia. It was suggested by Senator Curtis of Kansas and Speaker Gillette and was concurred in by Secretary of War Weeks of Massachusetts. It was the first time the son of a Confederate soldier had sat in the chair of the private secretary of the White House. But the appointment of Mr. Slump was valuable for reasons other than its sentimental effect on the leaders of the republican party in the south. Mr. Slump himself had been in the house of representatives and knew its personnel and methods intimately. Mr. Coolidge knew the senate but didn't know the house. Also, Mr. Slump knew more about how to get the delegates from the south than any man in the republican party. As a member of the republican national committee from Virginia, he knew the personalities in the party, their strong points and their weaknesses.

The business of getting delegates should not be misconstrued as purely a case of political manipulation. Mr. Coolidge's nomination is not due to the casting of delegates as such. Most of them were anxious to get called. It was due to the psychological process by which most of the delegates were themselves won over. They believed that their lot lay with Coolidge and no other. Mr. Slump prevented them from becoming the nucleus of anybody else's organization and they were themselves won over. And it did not take them long to see Mr. Coolidge was ready to show his party ability.

The first address to congress delivered by Mr. Coolidge was a critical point in the pre-convention campaign. Up to that time Mr. Coolidge was unfolding his personality in interviews with republican leaders and in brief statements to the press, but his program, indeed his platform, was announced in the communication to congress. It was a carefully written and straight to the point. The editorial approval which followed that speech brought Mr. Coolidge more delegates than anything his friends did. The south had come into line quickly. Now England was of course loyal from the outset. The battle shifted to the west.

Strength in Dakota

In the first primary of importance—South Dakota's proposal conference—the same state which had instructed Mr. Coolidge in 1920, came forth with an endorsement. It was significant of Mr. Coolidge's strength in the west. This was on Dec. 4. One cannot exaggerate the importance of that South Dakota primary. First of all, it contradicted the advice of those who had been urging Mr. Coolidge to stay out of the primary states. Secondly, it led to endorsements in the primaries of neighboring states.

All the old license fees are retained, some being increased, and provision is made for licensing gasoline tanks and filling stations located on the curb or in the street, signs, billboards, popcorn vendors, hillposters, and tick- et brokers, among the things for which a license has never before been required in Janesville.

HUGE DRUM CORPS FOR G. A. R. PARADE

Legion Gets Behind Plan for 40-Piece Outfit—Krueger, Drum Major.

Establishment of a permanent drum and bugle corps of 40 pieces in Janesville is the plan of the Richard D. White post of the American Legion. The first appearance of the organization is to be on Wednesday, June 18, in the huge parade for the veterans of the civil war who come here in their annual state encampment.

The organization now has 20 members. A recruiting drive is now being conducted and an call is sent out to all who can play a bugle or drum to get in touch with O. A. Bach, adjutant of the legion, Hayes building.

There is a great need for such an organization in Janesville, states Mr. Bach. "The men will buy their own instruments, but they will need uniforms. We hope that some way will be provided so that they may get them. Until such time as they do, they will wear uniforms of the tank corps. After the organization becomes established, it could be used for all state and national conventions of the legion and for other conventions in Wisconsin."

Walter Krueger has been appointed drum major for Andrew Gossel will be manager.

STATE FAIR AID TO BE DISCUSSED AT MADISON MEET

Madison—Proposed changes in regulations for allocating and distribution of state aid to county and municipal fairs will be discussed at a conference here this week between a committee of the Wisconsin Association of Fairs and Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman.

The present distribution system will be simplified under plans outlined by Mr. Zimmerman. The next legislature may be asked to make changes in the state aid law. Last year the state allotted for fair aid over $200,000. It is claimed that the present aid system is obsolete and ineffective.

Officers of the state fair association have expressed desire to confer with state officials on the fair problem. The question of amusements and slide shows will also be taken up.

ELUDES POLICE IN MIDNIGHT RACE ON BELOIT HIGHWAY

"Scoutface" Murphy, alleged to be a chief among Chicago bootleggers, was chased in a mad race on the Beloit highway Saturday night. He was chased by a patrol car of the Beloit police force. But "Scoutface" turned off on a side road and gave the officer the slip. On the way to Janesville the chief, named with a photo of the man, called according to the chief, was going 50 miles an hour and gave as his excuse that he thought the other car wanted to race. Chief Williams said he would lodge a complaint Monday.

DON'T SELL SELF, SCRIBNER'S PLEA

Retain Honor at All Costs, Pastor Urges in Baccalaureate.

Taking the story of Isaac selling his birthright to Jacob for red potage, from the 25th chapter of Genesis, as his text, the Rev. P. J. Scribner, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, held in the auditorium at 3 p. m. Sunday, left the thought that "life is a series of exchanges of something for something, and in the end the man who values birthright will have birthright, and the man who values red potage will have red potage."

Four hundred and fifty persons, in addition to the class, nearly 100 in number, were present. The invocation and scripture reading were by the church school.

"Red potage," taking any one of its hundreds of forms, is usually purchased at the price of the birthright of youth, the Rev. Mr. Scribner said, and that birthright consists of faith in the world, enthusiasm, and idealism, which are almost always lost in the struggle to gain things which seem more worth while.

"Things that are wanted most are purchased at the price of those which are wanted less," said Mr. Scribner, "and the loss of the enthusiasm of youth, which enables you people to attempt more daring ventures and carry through projects impossible to those without the courage and faith in their wisdom, is usually the most often the birthright sold first."

He spoke of the greed for money as being one of the evils for which faith is not needed, but which often is sacrificed, while agreement with the crowd, or the thought that anything generally indulged in is right, was also given as an unfortunate conception.

The critics who sneer at the idealism of young people and tell them that they will be wiser in the future, are not needed, but usually are the narrowest of outlook and make the individual self-centered, he declared.

"The reason this world does not get along faster is because of brands of potage get so ready a market at the price of birthrights," the speaker declared.

The services were opened with the singing of the hymn, "Holy, Holy, Holy," by the congregation, and followed by the invocation and scripture reading, the latter the 13th chapter of the Gospels.

"Life Time Eyes," Mendelssohn, and "The Angel," Rubenstein, were given by the girls' glee club.

Police and citizens of southern Wisconsin were appealed to Monday to be on the lookout for Edward Sutherland, 26, whose home is in Albany, Mr. Sutherland left home Friday for Fredrick, where he was to have had some dental work done. He carried a check in his pocket and has not been seen since.

It is feared the young man may be suffering from some illness that would cause him to leave home mysteriously. Local police were notified of the case by Marshall Roy Ties, Fredrick.

Sutherland was attired in a blue serge suit and a brown wool hat when last seen. He was no vest. He is 5 feet 11 inches in height and of sandy complexion.

Five Face Judge on Monday Morn

Fines amounting to $75 were assessed by Judge H. L. Maxfield in municipal court Monday, three of them in speeding cases. Robert Kehoe was fined $25 and costs for speeding when it was shown he was passing cars on Milton avenue at 20 miles an hour. Patrolman O'Leary arrested him. T. A. Buell, principal of Milton Union high school, arrested by Patrolman Keder for speeding on the same street, paid $10 and costs. William Hurl, Deloit, arrested by Patrolman Porter on North Street, paid a similar amount for speeding.

Pressing guilty to a charge of reckless driving on South Jackson street and Eastern avenue, Edward Splinter was fined $10 and costs. He was arrested by Sgt. Hardy for passing a street car on the wrong side.

For blocking the Academy street crossing more than five minutes with a train, George Flood was fined $1 and costs, total of $2.40. Patrolman Freese made the arrest.

GAS PRICE DROPS AGAIN

With another reduction of one cent taking place Monday morning, gasoline prices in practically all service stations are now from two to three cents lower than a week ago. T. B. Goodall announced a cut of 2 to 2 1/2 cents as follows: low, 13 cents; medium, 21 cents; high, 23 cents. Prices were 20 1/2, 22 and 23 1/2. A. Strimling is selling at 18 and 22 cents, while the standard oil dropped another cent today, bringing their service station prices to 15 and 21.

LA FOLLETTE IS ATTACKED

St. Paul — Senator Robert M. La Follette is attacked in a statement issued today by the committee in charge of the national farmer-labor progressive convention which will be held here June 17.

Declaring that the Wisconsin senator has "failed to aid the needs of the farmers and workers of the northwest," the statement accuses him of casting "his lot with the high labor leaders, bankers and middle class politicians."

She was, indeed, indifferent how much Diana said, for in any case the matter could not remain a secret long. "My dear, silent, too and listening, looked a question at her daughter.

And so, after a pause: "I know both," said Diana, her eyes straying again to Ruth; and a subtler man than she would have read that glance, and would have said, "for the same reason which he sought so diligently sat there before him."

Richard, indeed, catching that eye look of his cousin's, cleared his throat, and stood frowning, his face harsh.

"What do you mean, Diana?" he inquired.

Diana shrugged and turned her shoulder to him. "You had best

These points are vital. The toothbrush must be of the best quality and moderately stiff. The teeth must be brushed up and down on the bristles, and not side to side, so that the bristles can go between the teeth, and in the places where food collects and builds up. If the digestion is upset the teeth will need more than just ordinary brushing. A daily brushing is a nightly brushing, a mouth wash is desirable. There is nothing better than plain salt and water, which may be used either hot or cold, as salty water is antiseptic.

The salty water is good for acidity. If the trouble is very bad, try milk of magnesia. Take a little with the water, then, after the teeth are scrubbed, rinse the mouth with it, and swallow it, as it is good not only for teeth but stomach as well. Now, if you have a great deal of food on the little kore come in the mouth. If they are only what are called canter kore use as a mouth wash a saturated solution of salt or potash. Chang means water with much salt, chiao of potash as it will hold. Take a tumbler of clear water, stir in and mix thoroughly in the potash. When the water has cooled, you can use it. The rest will drop to the bottom of the glass, and then you can pour off all the top part of the water into a bottle. Use this water to rinse the mouth with this frequently.

The break would make your mother feel terribly, but she would not mind the loss of you. I am sure she would be glad to see you home at the week-end. I would miss her very happy. HOW TO MEET GIRLS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man of 22. I have been leading a floating life. I would like to meet a girl. I am 5'10" tall, 160 lbs. I was a baby of three and then I went to live with my sister and brothers. I was a very good boy and I was very happy, but I did not realize it until a year or so ago. Now I feel that I want to settle down. I have a fine job. Could you advise me how to do this?

A FRIEND.

The most satisfactory way to meet a girl is to keep your eyes open so that you can find one.
